

TAFT TARIFF BILL WILL WIN

This the Mathematical Calculation

TARIFF NOSES COUNTED

Insurgency in the Air, but May Be Averted.—The Motives Which Stir the Different Elements.

Washington, July 12.—Republican opposition in the Senate to the Taft tariff bill, as it has been rechristened, may be divided into two classes. The first is composed of senators who would like to vote against the conference report because it proposes to make free or reduce the duties on raw materials. The list of senators so inclined is Borah of Idaho, Carter of Montana, Clark of Wyoming, Elkins and Scott of West Virginia, Hayburn of Idaho, Warren of Wyoming and Smoot of Utah. This list eliminates Curtis of Kansas from the reckoning heretofore common and adds Smoot, who although a member of the Finance Committee, it bitterly opposed to the removal of the hide duty and may carry his opposition a long way.

Ten more senators threaten to oppose the bill for the opposite reason that it does not make concessions enough on manufacturers. These are Beveridge of Indiana, Bristow of Kansas, Cummins and Dolliver of Iowa, Clapp and Nelson of Minnesota, LaFollette of Wisconsin, Brown and Burkett of Nebraska and Crawford of South Dakota. These 18 men, uniting with the thirty-one Democrats, would either send the bill back to conference or defeat its passage. One Democrat, McEnery of Louisiana, is a protectionist and voted for the bill when it passed the Senate. His colleague, Foster, would vote for it if his vote was needed to save it. Other Democrats might. Of the eight standard Republicans only three are at present calculated as certain to vote against the bill on its final stage. Of the ten progressives only five counted against the bill first, last and all the time unless some of the textile duties are reduced.

This plain mathematical statement is sufficient to guarantee that the Payne-Aldrich-Taft tariff bill will become a law practically as it is reported by the conference committee. The situation has its dangers, for the material for a successful double insurgency exists, but reduced to cold figures, the eventual success of the President's programme appears assured, provided the conference committee agree upon it. They took up the disputed raw material items again yesterday, but bound themselves to secrecy and would give no hint of their progress. The fact that they have reached these items is proof in itself that agreement has been reached upon the remainder of the bill, for had other matters been in sharp dispute, they would have been glad to lay over raw materials until the exact temper of the Senate could be known. The ten Republican progressives are saying today that whatever they do, they will act as a unit.

RECORD FOR HAMBURG BELLE.

Given Work-Out Last Week at Detroit in 2:04 1/4.

The Detroit fair grounds' track at Detroit, now holds the season's record for either a trotter or a pacer. Hamburg Belle, 2:04 1/4, did the trick last week when she beat her record, the mile being 2:04 1/4. No performance in 1909 as good as the southern tracks compares with this. Trainer W. J. Andrews said he intended to give Hamburg Belle a stiff workout if conditions were right and a number of men interested watched her from the grandstand. It is a question if any horse in the world is in any better physical condition right now than this mare, for she is high in flesh, yet strong and in shape to carry her speed to the end of the mile. Andrews has trained her according to his own ideas, and as he made a success of Sweet Marie and all of the rest of the fast ones with which he has been identified it is expected that the daughter of Arcturion and Sally Simmons will show winter quarters with some laurels of her own.

Hamburg Belle was given the necessary warming up miles and when ready for the trial the runner came out to pace her. It would have been about the same without the thoroughbred, for the mare shook him off at the half and he wasn't anywhere near her at the end of it. The first quarter was in 31 1/2 seconds and then she eased off a little and was at the half in 1:03 1/4. The next quarter was faster, 31 seconds, and she was at the three-quarter pole in 1:34 1/4. Andrews let her go in her own way through the stretch and she stepped that quarter in just 30 seconds, the mile in 2:04 1/4. Andrews is training Hamburg Belle with the expectation of lowering the world's record held by Lou Dillon, and he says she is the trotter to do it. She will not appear many times this year as there are so few horses to give her a contest. It is likely that she will make her first appearance during the blue ribbon meeting, and give the Detroit track a record that will last for a while.

How to Get Money Back.

Two men met outside the door of a dealer in silverware. Both had tried to get money refunded on goods they wished to return. One had succeeded, the other had failed.

"How did you manage it?" asked the one who had failed.

"I told him," said the successful shopper, "that I had bought my suit for a present at a wedding that had been called off. That fetched him. It will fetch almost any merchant, no matter how much opposed he may be to refunding money. Last week another dealer gave me my money back for a set of knives and forks. I spun the yarn to him. It was true, too. The things had really been bought for a present. The wedding had been broken off, and the knives and forks had been thrown back on my hands, but if they hadn't been I could have made him believe it, and he would have given the money. It is doubtful, though, if I could have got around him on any other pretext. As a rule, jewelers and silver-smiths don't like to refund money, but in the case of interrupted nuptials they relent. They realize that it isn't the guests fault that those wedding bells refuse to ring and are willing to save the poor soul from loss."—New York Times.

MOORS ATTACK SPANISH

Situation There Has Assumed a Serious Aspect.—People are Opposed to the War—Story of the Desperate Attack of Moors.

Melilla, Morocco, July 21.—The attack by Morish-tribesmen made on the Spanish forces here last Saturday afternoon was executed under cover of a feint on the front against the Spanish flank. The first charge was repulsed, but in the evening a more violent assault was made for the purpose of capturing the Spanish battery.

The Moors displayed great courage and skillful tactics. They rushed in small squads and many of the tribesmen succeeded in breaking through the barb wire entrenchments, where they fell at the mouths of the cannon, after hand to hand fighting. It was three o'clock on Sunday morning when the Moors finally retired. The Moors numbered 6,000, while the French and Spanish force was composed of 2,000 men.

General Marina, commander of the Spanish force in Morocco, was in the thick of the struggle, encouraging his men, who fought heroically. Captain Gulluche and Major Hoyas were both killed while defending a battery. The Moors bore off several bodies with the intention of burning them, but the Spaniards made a sortie and recaptured the bodies.

Sending Re-enforcements.

Madrid, July 21.—King Alfonso and Premier Maura are hastily returning to the capital from San Sebastian, in connection with the sending of re-enforcements to Melilla, where heavy fighting has been going on between the Moors and Spaniards. HOLES IN HIS STORIES

Lieut. Adams Makes Changes in Testimony

STICKS TO NEW TALE

Tells of Interview He Had With Sister of Officer Who Was Shot.—Pointed out Question Barred—One About Murder Charge Not Allowed.

Annapolis, July 21.—When the court of inquiry that is making the second investigation into the death of Lieut. James N. Sutton of the Marine Corps, who was mysteriously shot on the barracks grounds here on the night of Oct. 12, 1907, met again this morning, Lieut. Robert F. Adams was again called to the witness stand. Lieut. Adams, who admitted that he was not on friendly terms with Sutton, told yesterday how he had killed a fellow officer. Lieut. Roelker, since dismissed from the service. Today Lieut. Adams faced the cross-examination of Henry E. Davis, counsel for Mrs. James N. Sutton, the mother of the lieutenant, and Mrs. Rose Sutton Parker, his sister. It was due to the untiring efforts of Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Parker that the second inquiry was brought about.

Lieut. Adams was calmer and more self-possessed than on the day before. At the outset his position was changed to another place at the long inquiry table at the request of the judge advocate. His new seat was exactly across from those of Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Parker and their eyes were fastened on him even more noticeably than on the day before.

Counsel started yesterday cross-questioning by bringing up certain apparent discrepancies between Adams' account of the death of Sutton as given Monday and his version at the previous inquiry. Mr. Davis pointed out that Adams told Monday of meeting Sutton alone near the edge of the parade ground, when Sutton threatened to shoot him, while formerly Adams said that Lieutenant Osterman and others were on hand at that moment. Mr. Davis attempted further to show that Adams had formerly said that bystanders had disarmed Sutton of the revolver in his left hand after Adams had thrown him to the ground. Monday Adams testified that some one jumped on Sutton's left hand, but he did not know if Sutton had been disarmed of the revolver in that hand or not.

"On these points, Mr. Adams, your recollection now is as you testified Monday?" asked Mr. Davis.

"It is absolutely," said the witness.

"Then you think that your testimony at the previous inquiry was wrong?"

"If I testified as you say, that was as I remembered the matter then. Now I remember it as I told you Monday."

"Don't you think that your first account, given only a short while after the event, was the more likely to be exact?"

"All I can say is I now remember the events just as I have been telling them."

Counsel's intention was evidently to give the impression that Adams was now trying to color his narrative so as to suppress the former impression that Adams and Sutton had left the automobile on the night of Sutton's death to fight a pre-arranged duel.

The witness, Adams, fell into a number of discrepancies, in his testimony on cross-examination, which his counsel, Arthur E. Burnie, former United States district attorney at Washington, will endeavor to clear up. Mrs. Sutton's lawyer began to question Adams yesterday about an interview he had with Sutton's sister, Mrs. Hugh A. Parker, shortly after young Sutton's death. Mrs. Parker, who is attending the hearings with her mother, had wanted to question all the young officers who were supposed to know something about her brother's death. She had asked Adams to grant her a talk alone and tell the truth about the matter, according to the testimony.

Lieutenant Adams was excused and Lieut. Edward A. Osterman called as the next witness.

"Where were you and what were you doing from eight p. m. to two a. m. on Oct. 12-13, 1907?" was the first question Major Leonard asked the witness.

Osterman told substantially the same story of the incidents of that night as told by Lieutenant Adams.

"We were in a room at Carrell hall about 12 o'clock when Lieutenant Sutton appeared at the door with a bottle of whiskey in his hand and asked us to have a drink," began the witness.

"We told him we were not drinking whiskey and he went away. About 20 minutes later he came back and said he had an automobile outside and asked if we did not want to ride to camp. I don't think anyone made an answer, but we all went out and Lieutenant Adams, Utley, Sutton and myself got into an automobile and started for the camp."

From that point on, Lieutenant Osterman told of the fight with Sutton by Adams and himself near the marine camp and later running down where the shots were fired he found

Lieutenants Adams and Davis standing near where Sutton and Lieutenant Roelker lay on the ground.

"Someone said Sutton killed Roelker and then killed himself," the witness said.

"How long did it take you to get from where you heard the shots to the point where the altercation occurred?" inquired Major Leonard.

"About a minute," said the witness.

"Did you run?"

"Yes sir."

"Whom did you see there?"

"Lieutenants Adams, Bevan, Utley, Roelker and Sutton."

"What did Adams do or say?"

"He showed me his finger and said Sutton had shot him. It was bleeding profusely."

The witness said Roelker was lying in the road and just picking himself up as he got there.

"It was pretty dark where the shooting occurred," the witness proceeded, "but you might be able to see a revolver 15 yards away."
